User story differences in description and time between group members:

User Story	Dale	Gary	Jacob	Jeremy	Michael	Differences Because
Search for Books	18	7	1	12	15	Some people had multiple search criteria listed out and/or some people assumed the database was not complete and therefore needed to be constructed in this phase.
User Account	14	14	-	-	-	Some people included a rigorous testing plan for this story, some people did not.
Keep Wish list	5	3	2	6	3	Some people assumed the wish list could be accessed from any page directly. Others assumed it could just be a list accessed from one place.
Rate and Review Books	7	5	2	3	5	Some people assumed that there would be a moderator reading reviews before they were posted and that this system would need to be made. Other people just assumed a review would be posted as a new field in the database.
Payment Options	6	19	4	6	8.5	Some people listed out all of the different payment options in their user story, some people did not. These listings generated a difference in time estimation.
Shipping Options	5	4	3	-	1.5	Some people included a shipping calculator in their shipping widget, some people assumed flat-rate shipping.
Check Order Status	7	5	4	4	3	Some people included tracking inside and outside the store via our own widget, some tracked through UPS/FedEx/other shipping agencies.
Recommendations	-	-	-	15	-	Only one person included a recommendation option, others didn't.

Pre-Order List	-	5	2	2	3	The same form of assumptions from the same kind of people as with the wish list. Some people had it accessible from everywhere; some people had it accessible from only one page.
Make a database	-	-	7	-	-	Only one person didn't assume that a database of books already existed and was searchable. This is the reason for the difference here.
Order Books Online	-	15		5	14	The higher end people here included a lot of testing in their time frame and assumed that this would be a complicated process. They wanted to focus on it because it is the most integral part of the website. The lower end assumed the testing would not take very long.
